SKYBRIDGE FOURTH FLOOR, RAWLS HALL

A favorite spot for viewing our campus! The Purdue Bell Tower splits the campus in half. The far-left side is student housing, dining halls and the CoRec. The right side is the academic side of campus, and further north are our two largest sports stadiums, Mackey Arena and Ross Ade Stadium.

ADVISING THIRD FLOOR, KRANNERT BUILDING

Our next stop will be the advising offices on the third floor of Krannert. It is mandatory for students to meet with their advisor once a semester. They are extremely helpful with not only scheduling your classes but also giving advice on anything and everything Purdue! We benefit from so much help from our advisors at the business school because we have a 250-1 student-to-advisor ratio while the average in the Big 10 is a 750-1 student-to-advisor ratio.

NEXT STOP DIRECTIONS

Next, we'll head down to the ground floor to see a classroom. On your way, feel free to stop by some popular study spots in Krannert like the Parrish Library on the second floor.

POPULAR STUDY AREAS

SECOND FLOOR IN KRANNERT

Parrish Library of Management and Economics

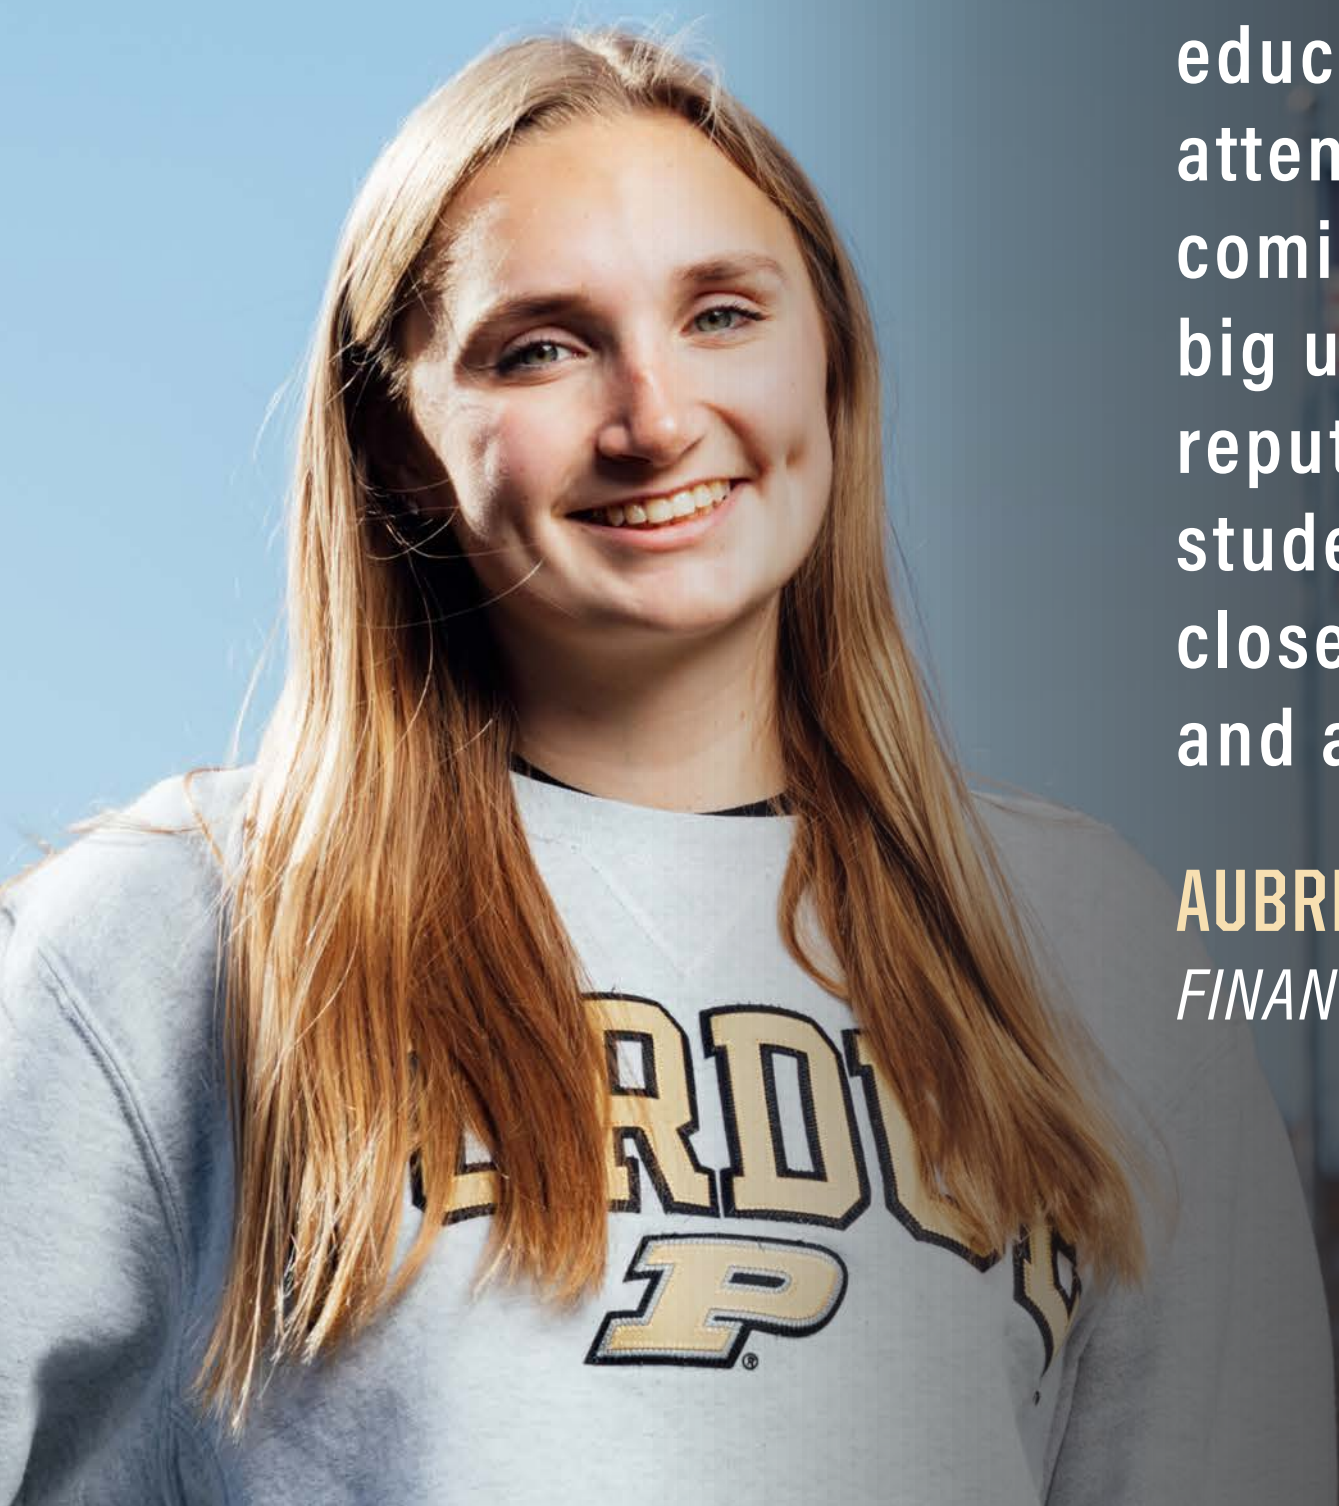

The Parrish Library of Management and Economics is named after cherished alum Roland Parrish of Dallas, Texas. Roland is a two-time business graduate who earned his BS and MBA from Purdue and is the CEO of Parrish McDonald's Restaurants, Ltd., which owns and operates 26 restaurants. His $2 million gift supported the 2012 renovation of the former library.

“

I chose the Daniels School of Business because I wanted to receive a quality education while still getting the personalized attention offered by smaller schools. By coming to Purdue, I get the benefits of a big university like the extensive resources, reputation and vibrant campus life. As a student within the business school, I get close connections with professors, students and alumni.”

CLASSROOM GROUND FLOOR, KRANNERT BUILDING

Our last stop is a classroom located on the ground floor of Krannert. Feel free to step inside an open classroom. Our 300 and 400-level business courses are in Rawls and Krannert.

The average class size at Purdue is just over 30 students! There are many opportunities to get help with coursework. Professors designate office hours for us to meet with them for help. Purdue also has the Supplemental Instruction program for some of the larger courses. Supplemental Instruction sessions are peer-led and are offered to help you better understand content being taught in Purdue's most challenging courses.

NEXT STOP DIRECTIONS

Go up one floor to find the Drawing Room. This is a common space for student to work on group projects, and you will find the Purdue Memorial Union across the street.

DRAWING ROOM FIRST FLOOR, KRANNERT BUILDING

We'll end our tour in the Drawing Room. This is where students often spend their time studying. It's a place where you can do group projects or work independently if you need. The conference rooms allow students to connect their laptop to a TV for presentation practice and gather for group study sessions.
